PROFILE

I pride myself in being a quick learner with a passion to grow and take on new responsibilities. By maintaining an efficient and organized work ethic I can excel in both individual as well as team settings and can be appreciated for dependability, competency and integrity.

Since my youth, I have always had a burning passion for building things, making things work, and furthermore finding out why things work. This passion lead me to technology where I enjoy the process in which information is perceived to and from a user.

With experience as a dedicated creative designing for all mediums and also as a focused developer writing clean code, I have a unique position to see from both perspectives when approaching a challenge.

Whether I am designing a beautiful workflow to simplify a process, or writing code to visually deliver a smart product I always strive to output my full potential. I enjoy the process and see everything as a learning experience.
